

We must recover a correct vision of morality, which has as its objective that of leading the human being to full realization, self-control and authentic freedom.

Through morality the person builds himself and ennobles the human that is in him, satisfying the deep desires of the heart that ceaselessly aspires to happiness.

St. Thomas is still today a "master" on the path of good and happiness. The teaching of the medieval Thomas has revealed those truths that cannot be altered by time because they are, among mortals, an expression of eternity.

FATHER VINCENZO OTTORINO BENETOLLO O.P.

Born in 1943, a Dominican priest, he is a professor emeritus of philosophical ethics, social doctrine and moral theology. He founded the Edizioni Studio Domenicano (ESD) in Bologna, Italy, and directed it for twenty years. In this capacity he promoted, organized and guided the translation into Italian of all the works of St. Thomas (the Summe, the Disputed Questions, the Catena Aurea; the Commentaries on the Sentences of Peter Lombard, on Aristotle and on the Letters of St. Paul). He was president of the International Society of Thomas Aquinas (SITA) from 2007 to 2020. (ottorino.benetollo@gmail.com)
